Welcome to Scotland's Marine Tourism and Recreation Survey

The way Scotland's seas and coasts are managed is changing.

Marine Scotland, the Scottish Government body with responsibility for managing Scotland's waters, needs more information about how people use the sea for recreation and tourism. This survey aims to gather that information.

The survey asks you about the types of marine or coastal tourism and recreation activities you do and where you do them. By providing this information, anonymously, you will help to ensure that these activities are properly taken into account in planning decisions.

We want you to tell us first about your favourite activity but we'd be delighted if you would give us information about any other marine and coastal activities you do as well.

All respondents who give contact details will be entered into a FREE PRIZE DRAW to win one of many great prizes including a weeks holiday for four in one of Scottish Canals' lodges*.

Please pass this survey on to others - we need as many responses as possible.

The survey will run for three months, from 1 August to 31 October 2015.

Thank you very much for taking part.

You and the coast

1. How close do you live close to the Scottish coast?

- ◯ I live within 1 mile (1.6 km) of the coast.
- ◯ I live between 1 and 5 miles (1.6 and 8 km) from the coast.
- ◯ I live more than 5 miles (8 km) from the coast.
- ◯ Live outside Scotland

Marine and coastal recreation types

Please tick a box for each type of marine or coastal recreation you have undertaken in the past 12 months. We will then ask you to mark on maps the places you have visited. You may mark more than one location, and can show this using symbols for individual locations, journeys/voyages/trips, or areas you have visited.

2. Thinking about your use of the Scottish coasts and seas over the last 12 months please tick all the activities you have taken part in.

- ◯ General marine and coastal recreation (beachgames, beach combing, rock pooling, painting, kite flying, sunbathing, naturism, picnicking, yoga, paddling, walking less than 2 miles, sightseeing general, fossil hunting, beach team sports, body boarding, general swimming and snorkelling, coastal cycling, horseriding, dog walking)
- ◯ General marine and coastal tourism activities such as scenic drives or bus tours

Welcome to Scotland's Marine Recreation & Tourism Survey

This survey works best on all modern browsers/hand held devices (released in the past 3 years). These will cover the great majority of Internet users: IE9, IE10, IE11, Firefox, Safari, Opera, Chrome and mobile/tablet devices such as iPads

Note: Older versions of the above browsers will still display our website/survey, but expect mixed results as they may interpret HTML, CSS and javascript differently.

General marine and coastal recreation

Zooming in or out – use the slider scale on the left hand side of the map or use the scroll when on a mouse. Do not double click to zoom. Note that if you are using a touch screen the pinch and swipe commands may add points onto the map.

Moving around the map – use arrows in the circle above the slider scale, or hold the left hand mouse button down and drag the map around the screen.

Entering a point in a place you have visited – click and release. There is no limit to the number of locations you mark on the map in this way.

If you have made a mistake you can reset the map by clicking on 'Start over' at the bottom left hand corner of the map. Note this will clear all the entries on your map.

Please add all the locations you carried out 'General marine and coastal recreation' in the last 12 months
